

Camper and Trailer Rental Agreement

This Agreement is made by the Lessor and the Renter (Driver) identified in the Parties section.

1. Rental unit

The Lessor provides a _____, registration number _____ (the "Unit"), with the included keys, documents, fittings, and accessories. The Parties should record its condition and test the accessible equipment at handover, including lights, tyres, doors, gas and electrical systems, water fixtures, and safety equipment as relevant to this Unit. The Unit must be roadworthy and legally documented for its intended use.

2. Period and fee

The rental period is _____. The rental fee is _____. The Details section may record the security deposit, cleaning arrangements, furnishings, mileage, accessories, and special terms. The Parties should also agree on the return place and time before handover. An extension must be approved before expiry of the rental period.

3. Drivers, towing, and lawful use

Every driver must be properly licensed for the Unit and, for a trailer, for the towing vehicle and combined weight. The Renter must follow legal weight, passenger, speed, and towing limits. A trailer may be attached only to a compatible and legally permitted towing vehicle.

The Renter must not carry passengers in a trailer or in an area where travelling passengers are prohibited. The Unit must not be sublet, overloaded, used for unlawful activities, or driven by an unauthorised person. The Renter should use designated camping or parking locations and comply with local rules on overnight stays, waste, fires, and environmental protection.

4. Living equipment and safety

The Renter must use gas, cooking, heating, electrical, battery, and water systems according to the instructions supplied at handover. Ventilation and carbon-monoxide precautions are especially important when any combustion appliance is in use. Suspected gas leaks, electrical faults, or safety defects must be reported immediately; the affected system must not be used until safe.

The Renter is responsible for ordinary reasonable cleaning and proper disposal of waste, but not for pre-existing defects or normal wear. Damaged or missing fittings should be reported promptly, with photographs where appropriate.

5. Fuel, services, and charges

Unless agreed otherwise, the Renter bears ordinary fuel, charging, campsite, toll, parking, and lawful road-use charges during the rental. The Renter must refill or empty service tanks and return removable equipment only as specifically agreed and permitted by law. Fees and deposit deductions require a lawful basis and a reasonable account of the amount charged.

6. Breakdowns, incidents, and insurance

The Lessor must explain relevant insurance and breakdown-assistance arrangements before departure. The Renter must contact emergency services where required, notify the Lessor of an accident, theft, or breakdown as soon as practicable, and provide the facts available. Major repairs require consent unless immediate action is reasonably needed for safety.

Loss and damage are assessed under applicable law, insurance terms, evidence, and the Parties' actual responsibilities. Ordinary wear is not chargeable as damage. No provision removes liability that cannot lawfully be excluded.

7. Return

At the agreed end of the rental, the Renter returns the Unit, keys, documents, and accessories. The Parties should compare its condition, service levels, and inventory with the handover record. A security deposit, if agreed, must be accounted for and returned subject only to lawful deductions.

8. Early termination and agreement

If the Unit is unusable due to a defect for which the Renter is not responsible, the Parties must cooperate on a suitable remedy, consistent with applicable law. Other termination rights provided by law remain unaffected. The document body and any completed Details, Parties, Items, and photo appendices form the agreement.
