

Laptop & Computer Rental Agreement

This Agreement is made between the Lessor and the Renter identified in the Parties section.

1. Computer and included equipment

The Lessor rents the following computer (the "Computer") to the Renter: _____, brand _____, model _____, serial number _____. Accessories, chargers, peripherals, software, condition notes, and photographs are recorded in the Details, Items, or photo appendices where provided. The Lessor shall disclose known material faults and provide equipment reasonably suitable for its agreed use.

2. Rental period and fee

The rental period is _____ and the rental fee is _____. Any deposit, payment method, collection or return arrangements, and additional terms recorded in the Details section form part of this Agreement. An extension must be agreed by both Parties before the scheduled return.

3. Care and permitted use

The Renter shall take reasonable care of the Computer, use it lawfully, follow supplied instructions, and keep it protected against theft, liquids, excessive heat, and avoidable damage. The Renter must not sell, pledge, sublet, or materially alter the Computer without the Lessor's permission. Opening the case, replacing components, or arranging repairs requires prior consent, except where urgent action is reasonably necessary for safety.

4. Software, accounts, and security

Ownership of the Computer and any supplied software does not transfer to the Renter. Software may be used only as permitted by its applicable licence. The Renter shall not attempt to access the Lessor's accounts or confidential data and shall take reasonable precautions to secure their own accounts, passwords, and files. Any restrictions on installing software or connecting the Computer to managed networks should be recorded in the Details section.

5. Personal data and storage

The Parties shall respect each other's privacy and applicable data-protection laws. Before handover, the Lessor should remove personal data and accounts not intended for the rental. Before return, the Renter should back up files they wish to retain, sign out of their accounts, and remove their personal data where reasonably possible. Neither Party may inspect, copy, disclose, or erase the other's personal information without a lawful basis. Any factory reset or storage-drive erasure must be agreed in advance, especially where data could be lost.

6. Faults, loss, and damage

The Renter shall promptly inform the Lessor of malfunction, damage, theft, or missing parts, and stop using unsafe equipment. The Parties shall assess any loss by reference to the condition at handover and return, available evidence, their respective responsibilities, and applicable law. The Renter is not automatically responsible for normal wear, pre-existing defects, or faults not caused by their breach of this Agreement. Compensation, where legally due, must reflect proven reasonable loss and must not amount to an automatic charge for a new replacement Computer.

7. Return and inspection

At the end of the rental period, the Renter shall return the Computer together with agreed chargers, storage media, and accessories. The Parties should check the device's physical condition, basic functionality, and completeness together, using handover records or photographs where available. Any agreed security deposit shall be handled in accordance with applicable law; deductions must be justified. The Lessor should protect any personal information that remains on the returned Computer.

8. Final provisions

The Parties retain any mandatory rights concerning defective equipment, cancellation, termination, and remedies. This Agreement includes the completed Details, Parties, Items, and photo appendices. Any changes should be documented and agreed by both Parties. Where a term conflicts with mandatory law, that law prevails.
